Pears should be packed in boxes with newspapers between each layer of fruit. For winter pears and rarer varieties, it pays to wrap each one in newspaper, besides putting papers between the layers of fruit. Thus packed with the cover nailed down, with the name and date of packing and kept in a cool place where they will not freeze, I have known the winter Nelis, the pound pear, Vicar of Wakefield and other late ripening varieties to keep perfectly till the June after they were gathered; luscious when eaten ripe or baked for tea.

Many who now send hastily gathered, bruised, ill-prepared fruit to market in early autumn could get double the price for it did they pick and pack it in ways herein suggested, and after keeping it three months or so in their own cellars, send it to cities in midwinter or spring after the first supplies are exhausted.

Cherries are said to be curative in liver complaints. Faraday recommended apples as the most nourishing and healthful diet for grown people and children, especially eaten raw. Apples and plums are excellent for rheumatic people. Lemons are a pleasant remedy for biliousness, and in some for rheumatism. One of the wild grapes of South Carolina is also said to cure consumption.

Keep costly or rare fruits in clean paper candy boxes, or envelopes of pasteboard, as for flowers or ribbons, wrapping each one in paper, just as oranges are packed, retards decay.

Signaling at Sea.

The British Government is testing a new plan for signaling at sea, which has already yielded remarkable results. It consists merely of an ordinary gong fastened to the bow of the ship below the water line. This acts as a transmitter, and the receivers are gongs of exactly similar tone and rate of vibration, one on each side of the ship below the water line. The receiving gong will take up and reproduce the sound of the sending gong from a long distance. Signals already have been clearly transmitted ten miles. -- Chicago Herald.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR

FASHION'S LATEST DECREES FOR COOL WEATHER.

Tailor-Made Gowns and Coats-Hats and Sleeves-Black is Fashionable-Capes Are Popular for Wraps.

YAILOR-MADE gowns are decidedly chic and trim lookbeing single-breasted with much smaller revers than last winter, and buttons are small and quite close together. These coat bodices are either quite long or short, as the wearer prefers. skirts are round and full, very similar in cut to those of last spring. A stylish costume seen last week was a tweed mixed in color, but in effect a rather peculiar shade of steel blue, round skirt, short bodice, single-breasted, small revers, strap seams, which almost ornamented the skirt, white chemisette, standing collar with turn down collars and four-in-hand

The first sketch is a new shade of golden brown cloth, long coat singlebreasted, with collar and cuffs of black velvet, the revers of cloth, small blackrimmed buttons. As the season advances, and it grows too cold for thin chemisettes, one of black velvet full, also collar, would make this costume more rich-looking and more dressy.

The hat is of brown felt, with ponpon, and band of black. These long coats may be a sort of warning of the approach of redingotes, and there is a whisper that embroidered polonaises will be next in order. Chemisettes of full soft materials, such as silk, surah, crepon, and mousseline de soie, are in high favor; the latter is also used to make dog-collars, arranged in folds and kept in place by bars of jet pearl or steel. They are considered very

Very pretty also are the combinations of fawn black and white, with a check in pale tan color crossed in red, and cigar brown, with a tan check crossed with pale blue. Plaids of all descriptions, in fact, are used for one side of these reversible cloths. There is very little news in reference to coats. The sleeves of gowns are seline de scie in white, trimmed with still very full, and as long as they continue to be in vogue let us hope to wear something that will not ruin our dispositions and sleeves at the same time, and certainly coats accomplish both. If the very full sleeves stay with us, neither will we have many looped-up skirts or draperies, notwithstanding the signs of their appearance in earnest before winter, as broad shoulder effects demand plain flaring skirts, with little fullness at

VELVETEEN IN FAVOR.

Velveteen, which formerly was such a despised material, and which has figured as such so largely in novels and tales, is now woven with a glossiness and coloring which makes it desirable for handsome gowns. The richest weaves have ribs, stripes and various patterns with figures of dots, stars, Vandyke and electric lines, and these of bright contrasting colors with the plain or moire grounds. The latest thing in this material is a cotton plush, which washes well and is principally used for morning dresses, blouses and dresses for children. Tho useful and the beautiful are now being combined by the mechanical genius of the age to an extent that our grandmothers never dreamed of. Certainly they never imagined a day when plush waists and dresses would be thrust unceremoniously into the family wash. Another improvement in this line is a style of ribbons in various fashionable colors and in black, which wash perfectly and are intended for the ornamentation of undergarments, so that the decorations of these articles of clothing need not be laboriously withdrawn every time a garment is laundered.

PRETTY NEW PETTICOATS.

Some of the new petticoats are works of art. One very handsome skirt is of Merveilleux satin, shot in three colors, with large satin checks in pale coral, turquoise blue, and garnet. Handsome black satin skirts are trimmed with colored ribbons and lace. Some of the skirts are frilled up to the waist at the back, suggesting the coming use of steels. Brocade is extensively used, and for those who love the rustle of silk are lined with

Some genius has invented a simple ittle instrument, by the use of which the dudelet can always easily keep his trousers properly creased without the expense of sending them to the tailor every few days, or the trouble of resorting himself to the sad-iron. The Only Five-Masted Schooner.

The schooner Governor Ames, the largest fore-and-after in the world and the only five-masted schooner, arrived in Providence the other day with 2825 tons of coal. She has recently been engaged in carrying lumber from the Pacific ports to Australia. She is 265 feet long over all, 232 feet long on her keel, fifty feet beam, twenty-one feet deep, and her tonnage register is 1768.77. She can carry 3000 tons of coal on a draft of twenty feet. She has a centerboard of the best quality of white oak thirty-three feet long, fifteen feet deep, and nine inches thick, and nine hatchways, each twenty-four feet cross decks and eight feet fore and aft. Her outside planking, the heaviest ever put on a schooner, is six inches thick, and at the gunwale seven inches. The five lower masts are called foremast, mainmast, mizzenmast, jiggermast, and spankermast, and are each 115 feet in length, the topmasts being each fifty-six feet long. The jibboom is seventy-five feet long, and the schooner spreads 7000 feet of canvas. She has two anchors weighing 6500 pounds each, with eighty fathoms 21-inch chain, besides a steam anchor of 1850 pounds and a kedge of 1000 ounds. The sails are hoisted with a donkey engine of thirty horse-power. and she has a large steam capstan and a No. 11 windlass, the largest made. It cost $75,000 to build the Governor Ames. Her master, Captain Cornelius A. Davis, of Somerset, Mass., is one of five brothers, all of whom are or have been sea captains, as was their father before them .- Detroit Free

Punning by Wire Not Allowed.

Some one with an injured right hand asked a telegraph operator at a summer resort on the New Jersey coast if he would write down and then send a message. The operator then volunteered to take the short dictation and the person delivered the following brief message: "Cannot come to-morrow. Sorry. C. EYRE."

Being in a hurry the sender of the message went away without examining what had been written in the blank spaces. The message was delivered in New York as follows:

"Cannot come to-morrow. Sorry. SEA AIR." The person who received it understood from whom the message was, but did not think much of the pun, which he thought was deliberate. He sent back this answer: "You aren't Sea Air. You are Fresh 'Eyre." Then, until explanations were made, there was a coclness between them that not even the summer resorts of North Greenland could equal. - New York Tribune.

Hotel "Dark Rooms,"

Ordinary readers must occasionally be puzzled by the now frequent addition of the words "dark room" to the advertisements of hotels and boarding houses. So numerous are the photographers, amateur and otherwise, who, now travel about the country provided with kodak and camera that the provision of a dark room for the purpose of their pastime, or profession, as the case may be, has become a feature with many hotels. It is sometimes only a shed or outhouse, rendered absolutely light-proof and provided with a red light for the use of the photographer, and a little water with a cistern for containing it. Some hotel keepers have at hand for these customers some of the stock chemicals they require, the general use of the dry plate rendering such dangerous poisons as are scheduled under the sale of drugs act unnecessary for the production of the photographs .-Washington Star.

A Big Shipment of Salt.

A remarkable freight train went through the Hoosac tunnel recently. It consisted of fifty-seven cars loaded with Worcester salt, on its way from the works in Silver Springs, N. Y., to wholesale grocers in Boston and other cities in New England. Two locomotives pulled it, and one held it back on the down grades. The salt weighed about 2,000,000 pounds. It was the largest shipment of chloride of sodium ever made by rail. The train was the longest that ever passed through the Hoosac tunnel.—Auburn (N. Y.) Ad-

Various experiments with the new rifles, which have recently taken place in Germany, have demonstrated, in a very conclusive manner, that another war would practically be one of annihilation. A well-known French writer, in an article which he devotes to the subject, says that the battlefield would, at the end of the engagement, be covered with two or three hundred thousand corpses, all crushed and broken, and would be nothing but s vast charnel house. No one would be left to bury the dead, and pestilence would, in turn, sweep away the country people. Pointing the moral, he adds that the man-Emperor, King or President of a Republic-who, under these conditions, would expose the human race to such a fate, would be the greatest criminal that the world had ever seen. It is tolerably plain that the horrors and the butchery which a war would entail are becoming more and more recognized, and that the terrible vista thas opened out is exercising a sobering effect on those who were formerly wont to discuss various eventualities with a light heart. - London Telegraph.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

"The large canoes, called taumucluss, are built from a keel. The keel s laid in one solid piece extending high up in the air at bow and stern, both ends being shaped alike. The strips and planks are split out of logs, and have no uniform dimensions, varying from six or eight inches to six two Irish and one English viscounty, or eight feet in length, and are of an English and Irish barony.-Chica different widths. These are fastened to the keel, and the sides gradually built up, not by lapping one over the other, but edge to edge, making a tight, smooth surface. To accomplish this, the center of the plank is dressed down thin along one edge. Then by boring holes through the thick edges at intervals, on the inside, and tying them together with fiber-not a nail is used—a tight joint is made, and the outside left clean and smooth. Often the seams are filled with gum which exudes from the bread-fruit tree; this makes them perfectly water-tight.

"The skill and ingenuity displayed in making and finishing these craft is something remarkable, for the reason that the planks are of such uneven lengths and widths and every part is fastened by fiber."-Outing.
